

17 Senators Propose Sharon To Stroudsburg Turnpike

Scott Listed As A Sponsor Of Measure

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8 (AP)—A cluster of 17 senators—both Republican and Democratic—today proposed a new extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to run from Stroudsburg to Sharon.

The bi-partisan bill would authorize the Turnpike Commission to make surveys and decide then on the exact route from the Delaware River in the east to Mercer County on the Ohio border.

(Known unofficially as the Keystone Shortway, the projected turnpike would extend as far east as the new toll bridge at Delaware Water Gap, where it would connect with highways fanning out across New Jersey).

The extension paralleling somewhat the present east-west Turnpike main stem in Southern Pennsylvania eventually would link with the Ohio Turnpike.

Another east-west extension was proposed earlier in this session to stretch from Erie County eastward through the northern tier of counties below the New York border.

The two alternate routes will give the Assembly a choice between two new routes—if either is to be accepted. In 1953, the then Gov. John S. Fine vetoed a proposed northern extension running parallel with the New York State Line.

The legislation already is on the books to permit construction of an extension from the Stroudsburg area westward to the Susquehanna River. It would cross the northeastern extension now under construction at a point below Scranton.

To still further turn the Commonwealth into a maze of Turnpike extensions, a bill was introduced yesterday to build a stretch in southwestern Pennsylvania to connect with the West Virginia Turnpike now being built.

Sponsors of today's Stroudsburg-Sharon proposal are:

Another measure sponsored by Sens. William J. Lane (D-Washington) and Eustace H. Bane (D-Fayette) would require the construction of safety barriers in the medial strip of all extensions of the Turnpike as a means of eliminating head-on crashes.

The Turnpike Commission already has constructed a number of experimental metal barriers and planted shrubbery at certain curves along the route where most accidents have occurred.

Russia's Leadership Crisis Involves Three Former Stalin Pupils In Battle For Power

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three of Stalin's favorite pupils—Nikita Khrushchev, Nikolai Bulganin, and Georgi Malenkov—are the central figures in a battle royal over their teachers, dictatorial powers.

The leadership crisis of the U. S. S. R. has entered its most dramatic stage since the arrest of Police Chief Lavrenty P. Beria was disclosed 19 months ago.

In a sensational surprise move, Malenkov startled Russia and the world Tuesday by "resigning" as premier. He issued a statement blaming himself for mistakes in farm policy and lack of experience for his job.

Ike Outlines Federal School Aid Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—President Eisenhower outlined today a three-year attack on the nation's school shortage which would throw $1,100,000,000 of federal money into emergency construction. He said the program would preserve "the responsibility of communities and states in educating our children."

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) and Rep. Freydinghuyzen (R-N.J.) immediately introduced bills to put the President's proposal into effect.

The Eisenhower plan is aimed at assisting school districts in three categories:

1. Those which are able to issue building bonds but which cannot market them at reasonable interest rates.
2. Those which have issued all the bonds they are legally permitted but which still have some money available.
3. Those which are flat broke.

For the first group the President's plan would do this:

The federal government would appropriate 750 million dollars over a period of three years to help states buy bonds which could not be sold at an interest rate of less than 3 1/2 per cent. The federal government would buy from 50 to 80 per cent of a state's total bonds, depending on the state's per capita income. The federal funds would be repayable in 30 years.

To help schools in the second category, states would set up school building authorities which would erect schools and rent them to local school districts. The federal government would join on a 50-50 basis to provide enough to make annual payments on bonds.

Airman Braves Cold, Fixes Plane

DAYTON, Ohio, Feb. 8 (AP)—An Air Force sergeant hung from the wing of a big C124 airplane over this area in freezing weather to keep the plane from crash-landing with 21 persons aboard, the Air Force disclosed today.

Fighting zero cold at 4,000 feet, M. Sgt. Floyd A. James, of Cave City, Ark., repaired the ship's landing gear shortly before it landed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base yesterday.

The landing gear trouble developed shortly after Maj. Louis W. Baker, of Allentown, Pa., the pilot, had taken off from Ladd Air Force Base, Alaska.

First Women's Class Enrolls For Auxiliary Police Course

ABOUT 100 PEOPLE—most of them women—signed up for the second Civil Defense auxiliary police course in East Stroudsburg last night. The class will start Feb. 22 at 7:30 p. m. in the Day St. fire company building.

The class, with 75 or 80 women, may be the largest in State history in terms of potential female police.

The women are mostly from the Stroudsburgs, but the class is for women from any part of Monroe and neighboring areas. Men too, though outnumbered.

Officials were introduced last night by Rudolph Bliz, head of the woman's CD unit in the East borough. Thomas Kistler, Zone 3 director spoke about how the auxiliaries would work into the county program.

He described the official uniform which has been adopted by CD: White drill coveralls, belted, with county, zone and CD insignia on it, plus white helmet with CD insignia.

East Stroudsburg Director J. Fielding Vollers described the organization of the class.

Maj. William D. Plummer administered the loyalty oath to class registrants, and outlined CD police requirements, the training necessary, and the conditions under which volunteers would work.

Executive director of Monroe County, Paul Crawn, spoke on the unit-headquarters relationship. He introduced the CD office supervisor, Mrs. Earl Miller, who with her assistants handled class registration.

Warren County Prosecutor Wilbur M. Rush said Mrs. Makatura told police she had set fire to her home and threatened to take her own life because of domestic difficulties.

Her husband, Stephen Makatura Sr., who was at work when the fire started, burst into tears in the courtroom at the arraignment.

House Passes Draft Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The House voted 394-4 today to continue the draft four years beyond June 30. It is currently taking about 11,000 young men each month.

The legislation, asked by President Eisenhower, now goes to the Senate. The same international pressures that helped to sweep it to passage in the House will be pushing it there, but the Senate is expected to take more than the one day of debate the House held.

The four House members who voted "no", all Republicans, were Burdick of North Dakota, Hoffman of Michigan, Mason of Illinois and Smith of Kansas.

Uncertainties of the Formosa situation and the designs of Russia were in the background as the house debated.

Mrs. Makatura Arraigned On Murder Charge

BEAVERIDGE, N. J., Feb. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Bernice Makatura, 23-year-old mother, sat calmly chewing gum today as she was arraigned on a charge of murder in the fire death of her 7-month-old son.

The thin, dark-haired woman, clad in a purple suit, white blouse and red shoes, was ordered to the Warren County jail without bail by Magistrate Charles G. Van Ness to await grand jury action.

Earlier in the day, police said she had quietly smoked a cigarette as she showed authorities how she set fire to her infant son's crib in her home on the Belvidere Pike in Phillipsburg.

Firemen found the little boy, Stephen, critically burned on the floor where he had fallen when the crib burned through yesterday. The child died later in Warren Hospital, Phillipsburg.

Mrs. Makatura was arrested later after threatening to take her own life and that of another son, Richard, 2.

Warren County Prosecutor Wilbur M. Rush said Mrs. Makatura told police she had set fire to her home and threatened to take her own life because of domestic difficulties.

Mother Jumps Into Hot-Air Duct For Baby

HORNELL, N. Y., Feb. 8 (AP)—A young mother today jumped down a searing hot duct into the hot-air chamber of a furnace to try to save her baby. The baby, rescued by firemen, was not hurt. The mother, also rescued, was burned.

Mrs. Virginia Shaver, 28, wife of a state police corporal, thought to telephone the Fire Department and turn off the heat in her home before she dropped down the pipe after her 19-month-old daughter, Terri.

Mrs. Shaver had removed a cover to clean the duct from it, and tumbled into the opening, about two feet in diameter.

Firemen found the child in a cold-air intake at the level of the cellar floor. Three feet away from her, Mrs. Shaver was wedged into the hot-air chamber of the furnace and touching the outside of the fire box. She did not reach the flames. Firemen ripped off the side of the air jacket to pull the two out.

Most Civilians Taken From Tachen Islands

TAIPEI, Formosa, Wednesday, Feb. 9 (AP)—The first Nationalist refugees—3,816 persons—from the big Tachen evacuation arrived at Keelung today in a U. S. attack transport, unchallenged by the Chinese Reds.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Wednesday, Feb. 9 (AP)—The Nationalist Defense Ministry today said most civilians in the Tachen Islands had been loaded aboard landing ships and attack transports and were on the way to Formosa by last midnight. Fleet dispatches said earlier that U. S. and Nationalist warships and American planes would convoy the refugees for 200 miles through easy China Sea waters to the northern Formosan port of Keelung.

The first refugees were expected to arrive in the fjord-like harbor late today.

Nationalist troops and guerrillas still were on the Tachens. They were reported blasting and burning defense works so the Chinese Reds would get only a scorched earth when they move into the Tachens.

The Navy today said its pilots had sighted at least two flights of Communist warplanes, presumably Russian-built MIGs, during loading operations yesterday. Pilots said the planes were spotted near the mainland about 15 miles west of the Tachens. "They kept going away and soon disappeared," one said.

Reports from the U. S. 7th Fleet said Red anti-aircraft gunners for the second straight day fired on U. S. carrier planes but no damage was reported. An AP dispatch said the Reds on Yikiangshan, eight miles north of the Tachens, fired on two planes Monday night and one Tuesday.

Otherwise, the Chinese Communists from nearby island positions still made no attempt to interfere in the withdrawal, which was moving in such high gear that some authorities expected it to be completed by Monday at the latest. The Communists are expected to move in shortly thereafter.

The residents of the North and South Tachens, 200 miles north of Formosa, crowded aboard Chinese landing craft and U. S. transports while carrier fighter planes flashed overhead on patrol.

Formosa Pact Approved By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted 11-2 today for ratification of the Formosa defense treaty.

The pact commits the United States to recognize any Communist attack on Formosa or the neighboring Pescadore Islands as "dangerous to its own peace and safety" and to meet it with military power within the limits of the U. S. Constitution.

Congress has already authorized President Eisenhower to fight if necessary to defend Formosa and "related positions." Under this special authority he has assigned the 7th Fleet to cover Nationalist Chinese evacuation of the Tachen islands, a redeployment which officials say will strengthen defenses of Formosa.

Magidoff Tipped Local Club Malenkov Was On His Way Out

ANOTHER HEAD rolled in Moscow yesterday. There was no bloodshed this time, no death involved.

Georgi Malenkov—pudgy-faced, rotund and deceptively mild in all his 23 months in office—was down and out.

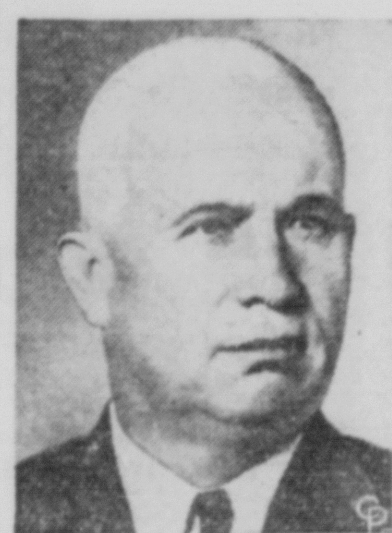

At least a few Stroudsburg area residents shouldn't have been surprised by Malenkov's departure from the supreme seat of power in the Soviet. They'd been given a glint of the truth three months earlier—on Nov. 19, to be exact.

The prophecy came from Robert Magidoff, former foreign correspondent for the Associated Press and the National Broadcasting Co. who had lived several years in Russia.

Magidoff spoke before the Dutch Treat Club on Nov. 19. During his address he discussed the death of Josef Stalin. But much of Magidoff's address centered on the "changes" which had taken place in Russia since Stalin's death and

Tougher Soviet Policy Seen By Legislators

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8 (AP)—Russia's swift change in command impressed some U. S. legislators today as likely to mean an even tougher Red policy toward the United States. Others thought they detected signs of turmoil within the Soviet Union.

Some said they just didn't know what it meant for the future. In Russia, as Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) pointed out, "the unexpected is always happening."

Chairman George (D-Ga.) was one of those who thought the accession of Defense Minister Nikolai Bulganin to the premiership with Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev as his sponsor, "looks like a tougher policy, both in Russia and abroad."

George noted that the deposed Georgi Malenkov was "more evenly disposed if not more friendly to the West." He recalled that Malenkov has tried to give the Russian people more goods, while Khrushchev is an advocate of heavier spending on arms.

Secretary of Defense Wilson, the man in charge of America's defense spending, calmly called the Russian shakeup "just another little ripple" so far as America's fundamental defense program is concerned. He said he didn't mean to say it lacked significance, but said this country can't "flip" its long-range program with every new international development.

Republican leaders discussed the situation with President Eisenhower at their weekly White House meeting and Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) reported afterward that "the consensus was that it is probably too early to know the significance."

Knowland also said "the aggressive gang in the Kremlin" may try to stir up more trouble now that Bulganin is "head man."

Bulganin Named; Puts Stress On Arms Production

MOSCOW, Feb. 8 (AP)—Georgi Malenkov's resignation from the Soviet premiership likely will mean a substantial reshuffle of the whole Soviet government under the eye of Nikita S. Khrushchev, Westerners believe tonight.

Malenkov stepped down today with a confession of failure to do his job. To succeed him Khrushchev nominated Nikolai Bulganin, defense minister and an army marshal, as the choice of the Communist party's Central Committee which Khrushchev heads. The Supreme Soviet (Parliament) voted in Bulganin by acclamation.

The day's developments underlined the Soviet Union's renewed emphasis on production of heavy goods, including armament—a policy exemplified by Khrushchev. The tough policy was further supported in a long speech by V. M. Molotov, the foreign minister. He criticized the United States as an aggressor, upheld Communist China's claim to Formosa and presented a picture of possible atom warfare which communism alone would survive.

All this made the people of Moscow remember the articles they have been reading in Pravda lately, and in other papers too, concerning the priority of expanding the Soviet Union's heavy industry as a necessity for furthering the nation's military might and producing prosperity.

Pravda last month said people who disagreed with priority for heavy industry are rightist deviationists and spoilers of Marxist-Leninist-Stalinist theory.

That would seem to put a quietus on the campaign for more consumer goods through which the Malenkov government, the first post-Stalin government, sought to popularize itself with the people.

It also seemed to many Western observers an admission that the Soviet Union cannot do all things at once. They cannot push a massive farm expansion program taking hundreds of thousands of people out of city factories and placing them on the virgin land of Siberia and Central Asia, at the same time pushing a big livestock program, a big consumer goods program, and yet have expansion of heavy industry too.

Something had to give. The resignation of Anastas Mikoyan as trade minister was a recent tipoff to differences in the Malenkov Cabinet. Khrushchev apparently swung his support to those persons demanding more heavy industry and defense production, and that decided the issue.

Now what's going to happen? Tomorrow's meeting of the Supreme Soviet may get an announcement of a reshuffle in the government.

There are riddles still to be solved here and most observers believe the full story is far from told.

Does Bulganin's appointment as premier mean that the army is coming further to the fore and taking over in the Soviet Union?

One of the West's leading ambassadors cautioned tonight against accepting such a conclusion. He pointed out that Bulganin is an experienced and able administrator. The expansion of heavy industry of course favors army needs and the Soviet Union is committed to give aid to its seven Communist East European allies under a joint command which probably will be headed by a Soviet marshal.

Most people here, however, still advise a wait-and-see attitude on the prospective reconstruction of the government.

Malenkov resigned at a morning session of the Parliament, confessing himself a failure in the field of agriculture and an inexperienced hand in the affairs of government. At the afternoon session Khrushchev nominated Bulganin, and received a standing ovation.

Then Molotov went to the rostrum in the great Kremlin Palace. While diplomats listened in the packed and tense galleries, he outlined the Soviet idea of what would come from a hydrogen bomb war.

He said the United States had miscalculated the time it would take the Soviet Union to develop atomic weapons. Then he asserted: "In the production of the hydrogen weapon the Soviet people have achieved such a success that it is not the Soviet Union but the U. S. A. which is in the position of laggard."

He said a comparison of the true strength of the United States and the Soviet Union would show this nation is not the weaker party. He declared the Soviet Union wants to compete with the United States in atomic matters only "in using atomic energy for peaceful aims."

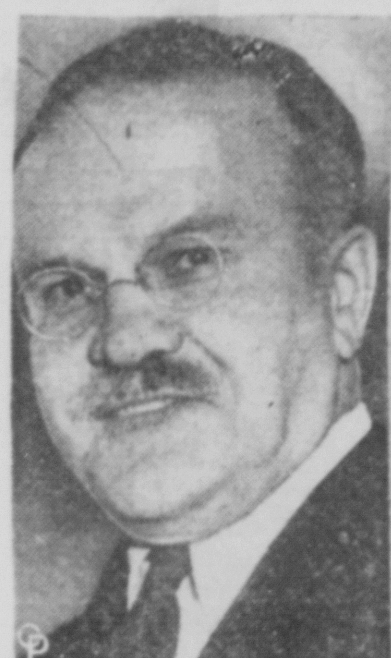

He warned: "In case of eventual war, world civilization will not perish but will be destroyed by the rotten, social system with its blood-saturated imperialism which is being Holt, who at 29 was the youngest senator ever elected, hoped he might help lead the way to a cure for other cancer sufferers, Mrs. Holt said.

For several years in his home town, Weston, W. Va., he asked that he be treated at the Research Clinic of the National Institutes of Health at suburban Bethesda, Md. Holt entered the hospital Jan. 4. Mrs. Holt said her husband "felt he couldn't waste time even when bedridden."

Another 18 survived. They suffered burns and bruises but none of them was critically injured, according to reports from the base hospital.

In view of the tenor of Molotov's remarks—obviously to be taken as a major statement of foreign policy—Western diplomats noted with particular interest that a man associated with the military had become the new premier. There was some speculation here that it meant a stronger role for the armed forces in Soviet internal and external affairs, even though Bulganin is not a career military man but an old Communist administrator.

Bill Offered To Change Primary Date

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8 (AP)—Bills reached both houses of the General Assembly today to set back the primary election date from May 17 to July 19.

The July date would apply in all years except presidential election years—when delegates to national party conventions must be selected earlier in the year.

The House bill sponsored by Reps. Albert S. Readinger (D—Berks) and John F. Stank (D—Northumberland), was given immediate committee approval. It is in position for debate tomorrow and final passage by Monday.

Readinger said the purpose of the bill is to reduce the time of campaigning. To be effective, he said, it will have to be signed by the governor before Feb. 22, last day to file this year's primary nomination petitions.

Sen. John H. Dent (D—Westmoreland) and Joseph J. Yocum (D—Northampton) sponsored the Senate measure.

A Noteworthy Birthday

We salute the Boy Scouts of America on its 45th birthday, now being observed during Boy Scout Week, concluding Feb. 12.

Since its founding in 1910 the organization has enriched the lives of over 22,750,000 boys and adult leaders. Truly Scouting represents a living cross section of American life.

Boys of every race, religion and economic background are attracted to Scouting. Today we find 2,700,000 boys in its ranks. Add to that impressive figure the 960,000 adults of good character who give generously of their time and talents to serve as leaders of units, Merit Badge Counselors and in many other capacities. There is hardly an American family that has not felt its influence.

Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, the Chief Scout Executive, a leader in the organization since 1913, feels that it is of vital importance to train the boys of today to be ready for positions of leadership as they grow to manhood.

"Strong character, participating citizenship and physical fitness," he says, are needs of our boys and young men who are served by the program of Scouting in cooperation with the home, the school, the church, and all other community institutions actively interested in training our future citizens."

Scouting's purpose, stated in the Federal Charter granted by Congress in 1916, is to promote the "ability of boys to do things for themselves and others, to train them in Scoutcraft, and to teach them patriotism, courage, self-reliance and kindred virtues."

Every member of the nation's 95,000 Scouting Units is indeed "having some kind of experience that is adding to his equipment to meet the problems of adult life."

It is that training that we heartily endorse on this noteworthy birthday.

Believe It or Not!

The late Mr. Ripley doubtless would have been amazed as any other citizen had he read in the public prints, as we did a few days ago, that a New York state woman had been arrested on a charge of refusing to get off her party line telephone so that someone could place an urgent call for the fire department.

From time immemorial, it has been the bounden right and duty of the distaff side to spend unrecorded hours on the telephone, especially on the multi-party lines where such interesting information can be developed.

Woe betide the impatient citizen who tried to break in on such conversations, for he or she was bound to be scorched by a flood of invective not convenient to report in a newspaper of general circulation.

But there comes a time in the affairs of both men and women, it seems, when this matter of long-winded conversations can be carried too far.

In New York state, as in Michigan and Washington, there are laws making it a misdemeanor to refuse to yield a party line in an emergency. Even though the laws have never been utilized, they have been on the books.

So, when the wife of a summer camp caretaker in upper New York refused to get off the line for a fire department call, she was brought into court and apparently is out on bail bond awaiting trial. It will be interesting to see what the learned judge has to say about it.

George Sokolsky Says...

Technology Added To Craftsmanship Altered Attitude Toward Scholars

It used to be that Americans were just Americans. That was before we became so class conscious that we wanted labels to describe ourselves as different from others. It is difficult to define those who call themselves intellectuals. For instance, Dr. J. B. Matthews whom the intellectuals describe as anti-intellectual has as many degrees from a variety of universities as his adversaries; he has worked in 17 languages which is an accomplishment for any learned man; he translated the Methodist hymnal into Malay; he worked as a geographical researcher in Africa. Does all that make him an intellectual or just a scholar?

I cite him as an example as one who cannot be described as a man without learning; yet the intellectuals would deny him their title. Professor Lionel Trilling explains the situation of the American intellectual as follows:

"It is certainly true that in recent years—say the last ten—American intellectuals have considerably, even radically, revised their attitude toward America. It is no longer the case, as it once used to be, that an avowed bloodiness from national feeling is the young intellectual's first ceremonial step into the life of thought."

Why was it ever, if it is not now so, that the American intellectual asserted his intellectualism by an antagonism to American nationalism which is the summa of American tradition and history? Why was this country so unsatisfactory to the intellectual? What had it done to annoy him? Professor Trilling's explanation may be correct. He says:

"A prime reason for the change in the American intellectual's attitude toward his nation is of course America's new relation with the other nations of the world. Even the most disaffected American intellectual must nowadays respond, if only in the way of personal interest, to the growing isolation of his country and the hostility which is directed against it. He has become aware of the virtual uniqueness of American security and well-being and, at the same time, of the danger in which they stand. Perhaps for the first time in his life, he has associated his native land with the not inconsiderable advantages of a whole skin, a full stomach, and the right to wag his tongue as he pleases..."

The right "to wag his tongue" as he pleases has always been anyone's right here. Are we to believe that these great mentalities who call themselves intellectuals did not realize their privilege until recently? Did they know anything about their own country or were they dreamers of "the ideal of the bright cosmopolis of artists and thinkers, usually localized in Paris" or in Moscow?

In a country of low literacy and class differences, the man who can read and write stands out as separate from the rest of the population. He is a man of distinction. In the Middle Ages in Europe, he usually entered the Church. He became a clerk. The Church offered the democratic way for advancement because a lowly cleric could rise to high position by sheer ability in a class-conscious society. In a country like China where the written word was cherished, those who passed the Civil Service because they could read the classics and write poetry could rise in government service. A Hanlin scholar, something like our Ph. D.'s but more so, cut a very significant figure. All doors were open to his advancement and if he added common sense to his scholarship, no office was closed to him.

The advance of technology added to craftsmanship altered the attitude of men toward the scholar and equalized him with others who might not be so literate. Thomas Edison, for instance, had no schooling, no Ph. D., could not have been qualified by any university to teach physics but he produced a civilization by the application of physical science to commodities of living. The same was true of countless men in different fields.

In the eyes of the American people, these untutored men gained a currency as noble as that of a scholar who compared Sanscrit roots with Greek roots and came up with a racial theory that in a century exploded in the ideas of Hitler and Rosenberg. The printed word seemed no nobler than the electric light bulb. And we paid better wages to those who made the motion picture machine flicker. Mere scholarship suffered in public esteem in an era which substituted pragmatism for moral absolutes.

Recorder-Gazette! Suppose the audience heard, "George Gobel, Stony Creek News: What's become of the 100-cent dollar, Mr. President? You can't hardly get them no more!"

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

We have been giving further study to the President's TV press conferences and can only conclude that with the novelty worn off, they will threaten no big time change in their present form. The second one was somewhat better than the first, but "Best of Broadway," "This Is Your Life" and "The Honey-mooners" are still safe. He displays assurance and talent, but we can't help wondering what Franklin D. Roosevelt would have done on a telecast press conference. TV would have been on his alley. He would have worked the old personality smile, the center-ring jauntiness, injected plenty of humor, grabbed every chance for a laugh and used the question-tossers as vaudeville "straight men."

Harry S. Truman would have been no sensation, even without coaching from Margaret and Jimmy Durante. But he might have been good for some fireworks through colorful explosions. Herbert Hoover would have gone nowhere on TV. Coolidge would have been a combination of Fred Allen in a deep sul-

Elmer Davis on a dead circuit. Harding had a show biz personality and might have done a poker bit with Harry Daugherty. Teddy Roosevelt? There's a President who was cut to order for a television show. He would have revelled in it, riding into the press conference in full uniform and on horseback. His "go-lighted" would have constituted a theme and trademark all performers seek. The press conference might even have been opened with "And now, Teddy Rides Again!"

The last press meeting program fell somewhere between "Creative Cookery" and "George Hamilton Cudd" on one side and "Early Bird Matinee" and "The World of Mr. Sweeney" on the other. We still think that if a Presidential press conference is to hold any TV audience it must be jazzed up. His secretary, Mr. Hagerly, was plainly visible in the last one, but did nothing to help put the show over. It seems to us he could at least juggle Indian clubs. Complete flops so far on the Washington telecast are the correspondents, many of whom have genuine top-entertainment ratings. (We know one who does a one-man imitation of Smith & Dale, and another who can lift a 200-pound weight off the floor with his teeth.) Think how public interest would be stirred if a voice from the newspaper group said, "Art Carney of the Elytheidae

My America

—by Harry Boyd

Slippery Underfooting Makes One Grow Taller

For years I have been under the impression that a man reaches his full height at around 20 years of age and doesn't grow any more after that. Vertically, that is.

Well, it isn't so. I was just spinning through the back files of the paper and came across a piece in which I wrote among other things, that when the first winter ice glazed the sidewalks I promptly became 9 feet tall.

That was eight years ago, and I have no reason to believe I would have lied about a thing like that at the time.

But now when the first winter ice glazes the sidewalks I promptly become 10 feet tall.

True, I have taken on a little weight in the interim. Maybe it's only being bigger that makes it seem as if I have farther to fall. But I was no Sinatra eight years ago, either.

Perhaps age has something to do with it. As a man grows older he tends to give more thought to such matters as the brittleness of bones and the mechanics of traction. He isn't as limber as he once was and even the extra padding doesn't give him quite as much bounce.

Whatever the reasons, I find that with each succeeding winter I look upon slippery underfooting with increasing suspicion.

There is nothing like a light sprinkling of greasy snow to make a person realize how delicate is his adjustment to his normal environment.

In dry weather you can walk around boldly without ever being conscious of the gentle undulations in streets and sidewalks. You take even sharp grades in stride and never give them a second thought. But spread a little ice or snow around and you think twice before venturing up hillsides that even a worm could see over. In slippery weather my feet can detect, through half an inch of leather, variations in grade which only the finest surveying instruments would measure. I feel sure this is what makes the muscles along the backs of my legs ache. That sense of precarious footing keeps me constantly tense enough to outjump a rabbit at the crunch of a snowflake.

This winter I have made a few sporadic efforts to develop a different approach to treacherous, roadbed conditions. I see small boys gallop down the streets like colts and fragile young girls prance along as confidently as if their high heels were magnetized. In the light of such evidence it doesn't make sense that to be safe I should have to mince along as though I were tiptoeing through an incubator full of robin's eggs.

So I try to relax and pretend there's no danger of breaking my neck. But one quarter-inch skid and—poing!—my tendons take over again, in no mood for make-believe.

How come nobody markets snow tires for people?

Try and Stop Me

The Marilyn Monroeish secretary barred the way resolutely to the office sanctum. "No madam," she said firmly. "You cannot see Mr. Gooseberry today." "I don't think you understand," said the intruding female. "I happen to be Mrs. Gooseberry." "Go on with you!" scoffed the secretary.

"That's what they all say!"

A wealthy lady in Hong Kong had trouble training her new Chinese houseboy to live up to her standards. "You must understand," she ordered, "that you are never to enter my bedroom without knocking." "Don't worry, Missy," the houseboy assured her. "Before come in, look in keyhole. Nothing on, no come in."

"Tommy," said the teacher, "I'm disappointed with you. When I was your age, I could name all the presidents in their proper order." "Sure you could," agreed Tommy, visibly unimpressed. "But there weren't more than six of them then!"

Robert S. Allen Reports

Strauss Rapped For Not Releasing A-Fall Out Facts

Washington, Feb. 9 — It's one row after another between Atomic Chairman Lewis Strauss and the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Latest explosion in this intensifying feud is a sharp rebuke administered to him by the Committee for withholding information on the widely-discussed question of radioactive fall-out.

The Committee contends this important non-secret data should be made known to the public.

That is favored by other Atomic Commissioners. They have told the Committee they have not been consulted on this matter, and that Strauss alone decided against acquainting the public regarding fall-out.

His knuckles were rapped in a letter from Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. M.), chairman, that has the approval of the full Committee, Republicans and Democrats. Strauss is bluntly ordered to "either defend your policy or prepare the information for public release."

A major factor behind this congressional ire is a barrage of complaints from small businessmen and others about not being able to get atomic industrial information that is being made available to certain large corporations who have the means to pay big salaries and fees to former Commission officials and experts with "Q clearance"—highest in the government.

A lot more will be heard about this dynamite-loaded issue. The Joint Committee is quietly preparing to hold hearings on it, with Strauss the central figure in these proceedings.

There is a significant hint of this in Senator Anderson's letter to Strauss. He is directed to submit to the Joint Committee "a full description of the Commission's actions and present thinking on the control and dissemination of information, and the scope and extent of security clearances."

The inside word is that this report will be used for a Committee investigation. Among the matters under scrutiny is an extensive reshuffling of Commission personnel last year by General K. D. Nichols, general manager who has resigned as of May 1 to become an atomic consultant for large corporations. The Committee is particularly interested in certain promotions to key jobs.

On way out? — Chairman Strauss' continuing difficulties both inside the Commission and on Capitol Hill have given rise to a new rash of reports that he is headed for replacement.

These hints have reached the point of conjecturing about his successor.

Joint Committeemen are being told that Strauss' probable successor is Assistant Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles, in charge of research and development. Born in Arkansas, and an artillery veteran of World War I, Quarles is a former vice president of Bell Telephone Laboratories and Western Electric Company. He was head of Sandia Corporation, Albuquerque, N. M., when put in charge of Pentagon research.

The Joint Committee knows much more about Strauss' wrangling with other Atomic Commissioners than has been made public. This secrecy is largely due to the classified nature of the information.

But it is possible to report that despite Strauss' public disclaimers, the Commission failed to act twice in recent months on important weapon problems because of a deadlock among the Commissioners.

Joint Committeemen have learned the following: Strauss insisted on one course while Commissioner Thomas Murray voted against it. Commissioner W. F. Libby, the scientist whom the President appointed last fall, declined to take a stand on the ground of not knowing enough about the controversy to do so. Result: Stalemate and the Commission did nothing.

Fall-Out—President Eisenhower is still considering whether to approve an "open shot"—for the press and radio—during the forthcoming atomic tests in Nevada. The Atomic Commission has recommended that, but the decision is up to the President. If he does authorize it, the test scheduled for the week of April 3 is the one most likely to be thrown open to the newsmen and photographers... The Joint Committee has set no date yet for hearings on the appointment of Atomic Commissioner John von Neumann. Senator Anderson, chairman, has indicated privately that Neuman won't be considered until late this month or early in March. Senator Alben Barkley (D., Ky.), asked if he planned to witness one of the atomic explosions, replied smilingly, "No, I think I'll take their word for it. I've seen puffs of smoke before, quite a few of them in the Senate."

Law Would Protect Meat Buyers

—by H. G. Heller

The packaging of meats in cellophane and other transparent material has proved to have a potent to the housewife, or perhaps the man of the house, who does the family shopping.

There's something about meats packaged in this manner that draws the eyes and provides an assurance of cleanliness which the old way of displaying meat did not quite achieve.

But there's always someone, on a group of somebody's who take advantage of a situation of this type.

They've been at work in the case of meats covered with transparent materials. Some buyers have found that unscrupulous dealers have hit on the idea of displaying only the best portions of the meat.

The bad side, or the bad spot is neatly covered with some opaque material, or a good sized label. Mind you, not all meats presented in such a manner have bad spots. Most dealers do not resort to the trickery involved here, but because others do take advantage of such a situation, something is about to be done about it.

A new bill before the House Agriculture and Dairy Industries Committee would require retail meat dealers who package their products in cellophane or other transparent material to provide that all parts of the meat can be seen.

The measure was introduced by two Westmoreland County Democrats, Reps. James F. Lovett and Charles J. Mills.

In order to put the damper properly on an improper display practice, the two Democrats have provided that any violation of the measure will be punished by a fine of $50 or a 30 day jail term.

There shouldn't be much opposition to a bill of this nature, but just in case you favor it keep in mind that Monroe County's Democratic Rep. Van D. Yetter is a member of the House Agriculture and Dairy Industries Committee.

Regardless of political labels, all of the members of the House and Senate eat meat and any measure which protects themselves and their families, would hardly produce any opposition.

And we're sure the few unscrupulous meat dealers involved here, would hardly dare raise their heads to oppose this measure.

10 Years 20 Ago My New York

—by C. H. Westbrook

New York—I've been having a fine time the last couple of days reading Bob Hope's book (written with Pete Martin), Have Tux, Will Travel, and the thought has occurred to me—I wonder if everybody around has the same feeling I have, which is that I've known Hope a long time and he's a close friend?

It isn't so, of course. My history with Hope runs this way: I saw him first in a Broadway musical called Say When, with Harry (Thay) Whelan. Richard, a show that sticks in my mind because, although I was not yet 20 and thought the legitimate theater was the greatest invention since spring water, I remember Hope as a "Tenny, anyone?" juvenile lead. He was all right, but the show... oh!

I met him in 1947 when I visited Hollywood with 14 other young women picked to help him publicize his picture, My Favorite Brunette. Bob shepherd us around for a week, polishing things off with a buffet dinner at his house, where we met Dolores and sat around telling lies with Rufus Blair, the dour press agent who pin-pointed Los Angeles as "double Duquene."

I've seen him a few times since. I once interviewed him and Madeleine Carroll during a rehearsal of his radio show and he sat back graciously and let me ogle Madeleine for an hour. Also, I belong to a luncheon club called the Banishes and once in a while we're lucky enough to have Robert turn up and entertain us.

All in all, I've seen Hope, off and on, in and around, up and down, for a few years now. Not much, really. And yet, whenever I watch him work on, say, TV, I get the uneasy feeling that he's my best friend and he's going to drop by the apartment after the show and say, "Listen, let me tell you what happened with Colonna tonight..."

Somehow, Have Tux, Will Travel has the same quality about it.

Couple Buys Corner House At Bushkill

STANLEY and Mildred Schovel, of Liberty, N. Y., took possession yesterday of the Corner House in Bushkill formerly run by Mrs. Dagmar Auten.

The property, with several thousand dollars worth of stock, was acquired recently by the Schovels for $23,000.

The sale was negotiated by Strout Realty Co., represented by R. and E. Hickman, of Bushkill.

Schovel was a landscape architect in Liberty. His wife has had some years of experience in the antique business. Schovel for the next month or two will aid his wife in setting up the new business, and in carrying out remodeling and renovation plans.

Schovel said he and his wife will continue to operate the Corner House as a gift and souvenir shop.

pressed with the reports of the Y groups and declared Stroudsburg Y was a real leader in maintaining so many activities without a main building.

Nelson pointed out the broad value of leadership of the YMCA using his experience in the Far Eastern countries where so many nationalities have difficulty in getting along together, still there was no evidence of this in the Ys located in those countries. There they affiliate like a lot of friends, he said.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Roger C. Simson, pastor of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Outbreak Of Virus Cases Forces Barrett School To Close Until Next Monday

CRESKO—Barrett Township School fell victim to spreading virus siege yesterday.

The school will be closed until Monday morning. High "absenteeism" percentages forced school officials and directors to make the decision.

It had been recommended by Dr. Harold A. Tattersall, school physician, as a possible preventive measure.

The virus outbreak had cut school attendance figures drastically during the past week. Last Friday an estimated 28 per cent of all the students were not in school.

The figures for Monday and yesterday were about 26 and 25 per cent absences, Dr. Tattersall estimated.

One of the biggest reasons for closing the school was the danger of "re-infection" of children who had already been out of classes and were, presumably, well enough to attend again.

Many of these students, Dr. Tattersall said, would return to the classrooms only to "catch" the virus infection again from another student who was just becoming ill with it.

Dr. Tattersall emphasized last night that the decision to close the school was made purely as an effort to prevent a further spread of the virus and to give students a chance to recuperate fully before school was resumed.

Closing the school, however, will be a futile gesture, he said, unless students and parents cooperate within their homes. One of the most important things for parents to remember, he said, is "to keep the children at home" until school goes back into session.

Dr. Tattersall said he hoped that the area had come close to or had reached the peak of the virus epidemic and "I expect—and hope—that it will start tapering off in the next two or three days."

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Bouncer, part shepherd and part collie, died yesterday at the age of 15 years and three months, which in comparison with a man would be 105 years old. A gentleman in death as in life, he did it with a minimum of fuss or bother to anybody. Simply slept away.

Under such conditions it would be sheer sentimentality to wish him back, but there's no sentimentality about the aching void he left. "It's for the best" is the sensible phrase to use at such times but small comfort to anyone. The heart denies what the mind knows.

You see, he still enjoyed life. You might have to walk around him after he'd settled himself for the evening with the family, but day before yesterday, he reared the car down the lane, his plume waving gaily.

We'll have to admit that of late he did depend on our small dog, Penny, as a sort of dog's Seeing-Eye dog to detect the fainter sights and sounds his dimming faculties could no longer catch, but no matter how softly you said "good dog", his tail would wag, his ears prick up.

How many and how vivid are the pictures you carry in your heart. The round, fat puppy he was when we got him, bounding like a golden ball to earn his name. The sheer grace and beauty as the young dog and the young children wrestled on the lawn.

The gaily of him as he pranced into battle with the big red rooster or tried to herd the rabbits feeding on the lawn. The day he tried to shepherd a squirrel and got nipped for his pains.

The way he always sat on the porch, his front feet on the step below waiting for us to come home, poised to come running with his greeting. Homecoming is a lonely thing these days.

"HEN MEDIC" joins women of the past in an unrehearsed part of the program at the Stroudsburg Methodist WSCS on Monday night. Seated on the stage in costume are members of the cast of the play, in which the plight of women 100 years ago was presented. Just as the picture was being taken Dr. Nina Mae Price, speaker at the meeting, arrived at the stage door. She is being helped out of her coat by Mrs. T. I. Metzgar, program chairman. Seated from left to right in the semicircle are: Mrs. Harold Stiff, Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. William Metzgar, Mrs. Irvin Price, Mrs. George Sebring, Mrs. Nelson Frantz, Mrs. Merlin Rutt and Mrs. Paul Fetherman with Mrs. William Davis at the table in the center. Mrs. Roland Dunkelberger, also in the play, and Mrs. Jerome Elwell, chairman of the status of women, who was in charge.

WSCS Program On Progress Of Women's Rights Is Given

Times have changed for women in more than costumes and these changes were brought out in dramatic form at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Monday night through a play given by the members and a talk on her days in medical school in the early 1900s by Dr. Nina Mae Price of East Stroudsburg.

The play, "Century of Struggle" was presented by Mrs. Jerome Elwell, chairman of the status of women committee of the WSCS, and was presented in costume with period furniture adding to the realism. Even more dramatic were the changes in thought since 1846 which was the time of the play.

It was not merely a matter of women's suffrage but of women's rights. At marriage, women had to surrender all of their property rights, both financial and personal to their husbands. Children, even an unborn child, were the exclusive property of the husband. There were no laws against wife-beating. Clergymen even denounced the attendance of women at conventions at against "God's ordinances." These and other facts of women's lives, at that time were all brought out through the play.

Life had changed a great deal for women by 1904, but it was still difficult for a "hen medic." Dr. Price brought out in her talk. She and her sister were two of the seven women students enrolled in the medical school at Northwestern University, Chicago, and neither the students nor the professors welcomed them.

A woman medical student taking her place in the classroom would be accompanied down the aisle by the rhythm of a hundred stamping feet and would be seated with a concerted thump as the men all sat down at the same time. A woman, rising to recite and nervously twisting her hands behind her, might find a finger severed from an anatomy cadaver placed in them. After class, the men would form a solid phalanx from the top of the steps to the bottom with the women forced to walk a very vocal gauntlet.

While the hectoring seems funny now, Dr. Price said, it was not funny at the time and many of the women dropped out rather than face it. However, intense interest in one's work and a concentration on the things to be learned won grudging respect. It did not, however, win equal opportunity to do special work, and for that reason she and her sister transferred to Woman's Medical College in Philadelphia for their final years, where assignments could be made impartially.

Besides the difficulties of study, women wishing to be doctors also faced public disapproval of women in medicine. Dr. Price said. The superintendent of schools where she was teaching on learning that she was leaving to study medicine snorted: "Spoil a good teacher to make a poor doctor that no one will take to."

That phase of it was more formidable looking forward than in actuality, she said, since there is a need and someone trained to meet that need the work will go forward, whether the some one is a man or a woman.

"Whatever thy hand finds to do, do it with thy might," she said has been her motto, and one which any woman could follow. Opportunity, scope and a way will open for those who do with their might what their hands find to do, she said.

Dr. Price was introduced by Mrs. T. I. Metzgar, program chairman of the WSCS. The opening devotion was led by Miss Ruth Piper, and Mrs. Harold Stiff presided at the business meeting.

Mrs. Roger Stinson gave a reading. Following the meeting, refreshments were served with Mrs. Randall Roberts as chairman of the hostess committee which included Mrs. Donald Holmgren.

Campus School To Give Patriotic Program Friday

A patriotic program, "America in Song and Dance" will be presented by the children of the primary grades of the Laboratory School of the college on Friday morning, February 11.

The program is being directed by the grade supervisors: Mrs. Helen Booth, Miss Marie Brown, Mrs. Gladys Seese, assisted by the student teachers now serving those grades: Ann Breder, Mary Ann Catino, Mary Alice Ushafer, Helen Hellmers and Marjorie Becker.

"Did you see 'The Women' on television Monday night?" a friend inquired. "It was terrific, but one line made me miserable. Mary spoke it when she glanced in the mirror and mentioned the passing of time. She said she knew the same kind of panic at losing her prettiness that one would know if autumn were to come, and one knew there would never be another spring."

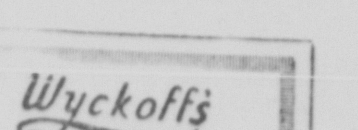

Yes, I saw "The Women" . . . and like every other woman in the audience, I too reacted to the sobering thought. Somehow none of us like to think of growing old . . . and that is just as true of men as it is of women, I am sure. It is all very well to say that age is just a state of mind. The fact remains that wrinkles and gray hair, halting speech, and trembling limbs are as real as can be . . . and the truth of it is there is nothing you, I or anyone else can do about them. Toughen them up or camouflage them, they are still there, fooling no one at all and, least of all, ourselves.

But while age is a fact, our feelings about it are purely a mental attitude . . . and that's where we CAN do a very great deal. This is just my opinion, mind you, but I can honestly say that there is a certain splendor in gray hair and wrinkles. I've very frankly think it odd and unbecoming to see a woman of forty or sixty who was as dewily fresh as a sixteen year old. There's something friendly and "lived in" about a face that has smile lines framing the eyes and mouth . . . and in my opinion, Barbara Stanwyck with her silvery hair is just as lovely as delightfully young Debbie Reynolds.

It does seem to me, however, that many persons fall down sadly in their grooming as they become older. Perhaps it's not their fault . . . even our national attitude toward age seems conducive to the "oh, what's the use?" stage . . . and somehow the feeling has gotten around that, the older we are, the more subdued we are expected to be in our tastes, habits, and thinking.

That's too bad. It's too bad that at a certain point in our lives, we begin feeling that perfunctory . . . nail polish . . . a bit of makeup . . . a delightful bath soap . . . a new hairdo . . . a daring hat . . . or just a "pick-me-up" of color, are no longer for us. It's sad too that some persons even carry this to the point of overlooking such essentials as deodorants, depilatories, and the like.

Anne Morrow Lindbergh has written a new book called "Gift from the Sea" to be published next month by Pantheon Books. The curve of a sea shell was enough to inspire this thoughtful and inspiring work . . . and Mrs. Lindbergh points out that nothing is without change. Human relationships do not remain statically pure . . . they are not permanent. Nor is life. But there is beauty in everything now that happens to us. We have only to find and treasure it.

Kremlin News Touches Off Stock Market Selling Wave

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP) — The stock market was pounded down today by a selling wave centered in aircrafts as the Russians kicked out Premier Malenkov.

The market kept an even keel at the start with prices only slightly lower. Then came the final hour. Aircrafts began to weaken. Other stocks were engulfed and slipped off.

With little warning, the selling wave broke over the market. The whole thing cleared in a half hour, and trading resumed its normal trend. Prices recovered from their lows but still were sharply depressed when the final bell rang. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $1.40, the fourth largest decline this year. It closed

Sports Editor

CHARLEY German, only a freshman, is doing a brilliant job as a basketball player at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College at the present time. German, who first made his court mark at Whitehall High, is the mainstay of the current Normal Hill quintet and will improve as the season progresses. Charley was outstanding in high school too, even though he had to share top billing with a pretty fair performer by the name of Tom Lukish.

German captured 24 rebounds against Kutztown last Saturday night and helped his mates to an 84-77 victory. Although German isn't tall, speaking in basketball lingo, he has the responsibility of doing a big man's job. Ray Kaseman was the Kaseman of old against Kutztown and even though he was one of the smallest players on the court came up with 11 rebounds. I believe last Saturday's showing, not including last night's, was the best of the season for the Warriors.

Jack Newell, former Stroudsburg High basketball and baseball star, has decided not to finish out the season with the ESSTC varsity team. Newell, who was taken by Roderick "Mac" MacLeod, a good photographer, and not by this scribe as it originally appeared. Paul "Candy" Miller, former three-letter athlete at East Stroudsburg High, is currently stationed at Camp Rucker, Alabama. As one would expect Miller is connected with Army athletics and is playing plenty of basketball.

Although Palmerton has won 19 basketball games without a defeat, only three contests short of a school record, all isn't well financially with the Bombers. Although Palmerton valiantly to the first half championship in the Lehigh Valley League, the gate has been small for home appearances. Unless home attendance shows an increase during the rest of the season Palmerton will suffer one of its poorest years financially in athletic history.

Palmerton lost $1,500 in football last season, with a losing team, and is currently running in the hole in basketball. The winter sport usually pays the freight for baseball and track at Palmerton, but it doesn't appear destined to accomplish the feat this season. Is it true that Win Evans, Palmerton cage manager, is about to move to greener pastures? Rumors making the rounds indicate that Evans has received some outstanding offers from high schools in New Jersey.

Evans and his Palmerton teammates were the guests of Muhlenberg at Saturday's basketball games in which the Mules came up with a 93-72 verdict over Gettysburg. It is quite possible that Jim Gravel, Palmerton cage ace, may enroll at Muhlenberg next September. The same may be said for Joe Switzer. Bill Frear and his Chestnuthill High cagers were the guests of East Stroudsburg State Teachers College at last Saturday's basketball battle with Kutztown. Ray Steele battles for the special Kansas City A's baseball school tomorrow.

Jim Shreve, former Moravian football coach who just took an assistant's job at George Washington, was one of the umpires at last spring's Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg baseball game. The other ump at that time was likeable Gene Hartzell. It costs each team $25 to enter the Pocono Mountains Baseball League each season. Each of the 10 clubs will be presented with a check for $19.30 at the next circuit meeting to be held at the Lake House on Monday, February 21.

The fact that it cost each of the 10 teams in the PML only $5.70 to enter the league last season is a credit to the circuit. There certainly wasn't any money wasted. The circuit will be entering its 10th campaign in May. Five teams have been reorganized for the coming season, leaving the same number still to complete the task. Dorothy Steigewalt, secretary of the West End club, is the first woman to be a team official in the history of the circuit.

Slatington Slams Stroudsburg

SLATINGTON turned out the lights on Stroudsburg's dream of an undefeated second half in the Lehigh Valley Basketball League by trouncing the Mountaineers, 88-53, before a packed house in the W. Main St. gymnasium last night.

The Slaters, driving toward their second straight championship, led from start to finish and never once let up on the previously unbeaten Mountaineers who never had a chance last night. It was the seventh loss in 15 outings for Stroudsburg and one of its worst defeats in the schools history.

Maurice Schleicher, putting on one of the greatest individual performances in the existence of the Stroudsburg court, dunked a field goal in the first minute of play and the home town five was just along for the ride the remainder of the distance.

Dick Little's foul was the only point for the Mountaineers until Doug Shook, the only bright light in a losing cause, rammed home a double-decker at the four-minute mark. The Mountaineers trailed 6-1, 8-3 and 19-8 at different points in the opening frame. Slatington led by a 21-10 count at the end of the first round.

The Slaters, heading for a showdown with Palmerton on Friday, poured on the coal in the second quarter and completely ran away from the outclassed Stroudsburg contingent, 27-13. The visiting five led at halftime, 48-23.

Stroudsburg appeared ready to at least return the score to a re-

specful margin in the second half as they battled to a 16-13 advantage in the third round. Dave Nevil led the third period attack with six points before being excused from the game by the officials.

Slatington demonstrated its power once again in the final period when the black and white clad charges of likeable Lloyd Williams banged away at the nets for 27 points, while Stroudsburg's regulars and substitutes could register only 14.

The win was the third without a loss in the second half for Slatington and enabled the Slaters to remain tied for first place with unbeaten Palmerton. Stroudsburg on the other hand suffered its first second half loss in three outings.

Schleicher's tremendous rebounding work was the difference in the outcome of the game. The six-foot, four-inch three-letter athlete completely dominated both the offensive and defensive boards throughout the ball game.

Slatington coupled its fast break with near perfect shooting ability to pull away from the Mountaineers early and into a position which enabled the visiting squad to almost name the final score.

The game raged up and down the court for 32 minutes, completely out of the control of officials. Tempers flared on the court, but only 45 foul shots were taken by the two teams.

Stroudsburg, outclassed from the field, 37-20, made good on 13 of 19 charity tosses, while Slatington converted 14 of 26 free throws.

Shook was brilliant in defeat, gaining possession of most of Stroudsburg's 16 rebounds and scoring 22 points. The Mountaineers captured only nine defensive and seven offensive rebounds during the entire ball game. Little was next in the scoring picture with 17 counters.

Merrill Eckhart led the Slatington attack with 24 points, but received plenty of support from Lee Kreidler, 18; Schleicher, 17; Steve Kern, 12; and Lowell Scherer, 10. Stroudsburg entertains Northampton on the Stroudsburg court, while Slatington and Palmerton battle on Slatington's Smith Hall boards on Friday.

Slatington made a clean sweep of the program by winning the junior varsity tussle, 56-31.

Chestnuthill Decisions

TTHS, 63-52

BRODHEADSVILLE—Chestnuthill High's basketball machine continues to set the pace in the Monroe County League after scoring a 63-52 victory over Tobyhanna Township High School here on the winning contingent's home court last night.

Chestnuthill's ninth win in 11 games didn't come easy, as the home town charges of Coach Bill Frear were forced to beat off a terrific finishing kick by the TTHS quintet.

Willard Costanzo, one of the most prolific scorers in the history of the Monroe County League, put on another brilliant one-man demonstration with 33 of the 52 losing points to his credit.

The TTHS center tallied 23 of his 33 points in the second half, 15 of them coming in the fourth quarter. Costanzo didn't miss a single shot in the final period. He made good on 13 field goal attempts and rang the bell on seven of 10 shots from the foul line. Costanzo scored almost at will although "double teamed" throughout the game.

TTHS jumped into a 4-0 lead in the first period and Chestnuthill didn't tie the count until the home team scored on the first play of the second period. The count at this point was 8-8, but Chestnuthill enjoyed a 22-18 advantage at halftime.

Chestnuthill went on to win by running up a 16-0 edge in the third quarter and then battling TTHS on even terms in the last eight minutes, 25-25.

The home team held a 29-20 field goal advantage, but made only five of 14 foul shots. TTHS converted 12 of 20 tosses from the foul line.

Harold Burkett, 20; Dick Kreger, 18, and Dick Bizousky, 18, paced the Chestnuthill attack.

Chestnuthill swept the bill by winning the junior varsity struggle, 29-13.

Phillipsburg Nips East Stroudsburg

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J.—East Stroudsburg High School's basketball machine ran out of gas here last night and fell before Phillipsburg High, 84-77, in overtime. The exhibition contest was played on the Phillipsburg boards.

East Stroudsburg, playing without Bill Pensyl, Dick Gray and Danny Marvin, led right up to the last three seconds of play, only to have high scoring Jim Bethman convert two foul shots to even the count at 72-72 at the end of regulation time.

Bethman, who scored 44 points in the game, then led an attack in the three-minute overtime period that gave the home team a 12-5 edge and victory.

East Stroudsburg, although hobbled by the loss of three regulars, battled the Garnet on even terms throughout the contest. Both clubs

Barrett Forced To Postpone Two Contests

CANADENSIS — Barrett High School was forced to close its doors for the remainder of the week because of illness yesterday. It will reopen next Monday.

Closing school means that the Barrett basketball team will have three games to make up in the current pennant race.

Barrett had previously postponed last Friday's tussle, with Tollyhanna Township and was forced to put last night's scheduled contest with Polk on a new date. Friday's clash with Coolbaugh will also have to be postponed.

A new date will probably be set next Tuesday when principals of the Monroe County schools meet.

The Monroe County League was originally scheduled to close its doors on Friday, February 18. But two previously postponed games were rescheduled for Monday, February 23.

All-Star game action is listed for the East Stroudsburg High School court on Wednesday, November 23.

A total of 17 players from the Barrett varsity and junior varsity schools were absent from school yesterday because of illness.

Scholarship Available To High Scorer

A SENATORIAL scholarship at University of Pennsylvania, worth $1,300 over a four-year period, has been made available by Sen. William Z. Scott (R-14th District) to the student from his senatorial district who makes the top score in the mathematics tournament to be held at Penn State University April 30.

The scholarship will become operative with the fall of this year. Edward Bosman, state chairman of the tourney and teacher in Barrett Schools, announced yesterday. Sen. Scott's district includes Pike, Wayne, Monroe and Carbon. In advising Mr. Bosman of the scholarship offer, Sen. Scott said it will apply to any student from any one of the counties in his district who scores the highest marking.

The math tournament is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Council of Mathematics Teachers of which Mr. Bosman is treasurer.

Already a large number of regional high school students have made arrangements to enter the tournament, but until Mr. Bosman advised Sen. Scott of the project, there was no scholarship offered entries from the four-county 14th Senatorial District.

Students first are given county screening examinations to select best qualified for the state-wide tournament. Monroe County's screening examinations to select pleted. Six students have been selected.

Work Started On New Dial Phone Office

PORTLAND—The Pennsylvania Community Telephone Co. has begun work on converting the exchange here to automatic service. An office building is being built for the installation of dial equipment.

The office building will be on State St. and be unattended by operators, according to Arthur DeHaven, manager of the company's Bangor district.

Dial operation is expected to go into effect here in July. The cost of the conversion is estimated at $150,000. Other work will consist of the running of new cable and wire installation, installation of dial equipment in the new office, and installing new dial sets for over 570 subscribers.

The Commonwealth Telephone Co. of Dallas, which purchased the Pennsylvania Community Co. last August, has announced plans to convert all Community exchanges to dial operation. The company has served some 15,000 subscribers.

Piggy-Back Study To Be Made By Joint Council

NEW YORK, Feb. 8 (AP)—The council of eastern rail and truck common carriers announced yesterday it had appointed a joint engineering committee to study the technical aspects of "piggy-back," or the carrying of truck trailers on railroad flat cars.

The council, after its meeting today, said the committee will investigate and report back to the council "on the most efficient and economical methods of loading and unloading trailers on railroad freight cars as well as the type railroad car and trailer best adapted to the service."

Formation of the council was announced last month. The joint group of eastern railroads and big interstate trucking lines that operate east of the Mississippi was organized to study common problems and reconcile their differences.

Nixon Lauds Government Of Cuba

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 8 (AP)—U. S. Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today after a conference with President-elect Fulgencio Batista, "I am very much impressed with the competence and stability" of the island government.

Nixon, on a four-week Caribbean good will tour, also reiterated at a news conference that he personally believes the U.S. marketing quota for sugar—the backbone of the Cuban economy—will not be cut prior to expiration of the current sugar act at the end of 1956. This was favorably received, since Cuba has a vast sugar surplus.

The vice president will leave tomorrow for Mexico.
